Sessions
Julia Durango- Award winning children’s author. Julia has written over a dozen books including fiction and non-fiction and ranging in interest from pre-school children to young adults. Julia will share her texts with the audience as well as how she got her start in writing due to her international work experiences in Columbia.

Financial Planning for the Real World-Jana Hattey will share information about making sound financial decisions once students get their first real jobs. Topics will include developing a personal budget and options available as students plan for future financial security.

Julia Durango Q & A- After her seminar, the author will host a question/answer session about her body of work.

Fostering Social and Emotional Wellbeing in the Classroom-Kelli and Ken Oliver will deliver a seminar focused on children’s states of emotional and social wellbeing. The discussion will include identification of states of emotional and social wellbeing, ways teachers can address issues, and positive and negative impacts on a child’s ability to learn.

International Teaching Experiences and Opportunities-Mr. Don LeBlanc will share his experiences as a teacher in Qatar and discuss the benefits and challenges of teaching abroad. He has agreed to offer his seminar twice.

What’s Next: Options for Further Education-This seminar will touch on the expectations and options once students have secured their first teaching positions. Topics will include professional development opportunities and expectations for early career-teachers, the paths available when students decide to pursue Master, Specialist, and Doctoral degrees, and how degrees match up with career advancement opportunities.

Experiences and Perspectives of a Reading Specialist-Shelley Eager is an experienced Reading Specialist. She will share information about the position, preparation required, responsibilities, challenges, and rewards. She will provide insight for beginning teachers about teaching of reading and important techniques for addressing student challenges.

Beginning Teacher Panel-Recent C-SC graduates return to share their advice for dealing with the realities of the first year of teaching. They will provide a candid look at job responsibilities, expectations, and coping mechanisms.
